Mukden, August 24.—Efforts generally believed to have been inspired by the Tokio Government to prevent the party of visiting American Congressmen from visiting Korea have come to naught, for the Congressmen are proceeding into the Hermit Kingdom tonight by the South Manchurian Railway.

Upon its departure from Antung, the last Chinese territory they touch before going to Korea, the party leaves a farewell message to the Chinese people, which reads as follows:

"The reception given us in every city and community we visited in China showed indisputable evidence of the friendship of the Chinese people.

"We construe this manifestation of friendly spirit as not only for us as individuals but also as for the American people as a whole, whom we only represent as a part.

THANKS FROM LADIES

"Our tour in China has been most informing and will enable us to appreciate more intelligently the problems of China.

"We shall convey to the United States Congress and the American people the information we have received and apprise them of the courtesies you extended to us during our sojourn.

"On the eve of leaving Chinese soil, we wish to express again our gratitude for the hospitality extended to us by all.

TOUR INFORMING

"The ladies of the party especially wish to express their thanks for the many graceful courtesies of the Chinese people."

The party was entertained by Chinese and Japanese communities and officials here today.

Mukden, August 24.—The United States Congressional Party was entertained at a banquet given by the Japanese Chamber of Commerce today. In a speech, Congressman L. C. Dyer of St. Louis, Mo., invited the Japanese to co-operate wholeheartedly, honestly and honorably in assisting the educational, industrial and political development of China.

The speaker complimented the enterprising spirit of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce and thanked it for the hearty welcome.

The president of the Chamber, in his response, invited the American captains of industry to share the development of Manchuria.

Tokio Issues Report Of 'Plot Of Koreans' Aimed At Visitors

(Reuter's Service)

Tokio, August 23.—The following official statement is issued by the Korean Police Bureau today:

"A plot against the American Congressional Party by desperate Koreans has been nipped in the bud. Some time ago thousands of leaflets, containing inflammable literature, were secretly distributed throughout Korea by a member of the Korean Nationalist League, whose headquarters are in Manchuria.

"Extensive police raids in Seoul on the night of August 21 resulted in the arrest of the desperadoes. Bombs and revolvers were found.

"The arrested men confessed that they intended to throw bombs at the Congressional Party on the occasion of their arrival at Seoul

BELOW - DR. ORLANDO SCOTT

After slicing twelve square inches of flesh from his own body and grafting it upon that of his wife in an effort to save her life, Dr. Orlando Scott, of Chicago, was able to announce that both he and his patient were doing great. The pain must have been almost unbearable, but the doctor went through the ordeal without the aid of even a local anesthetic. Mrs. Scott had been injured in an auto accident and part of the flesh had been torn from the calf of her leg. Grafting of flesh was the only thing that would have saved her limb and possibly her life.

GOURAUD'S WORK IN SYRIA LAUDED

Cairo Message, However, Tells Of Attack Of Bedouins And Officer's Death

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 23.—The success of General Gouraud's policy in restoring peace in Syria becomes daily more apparent, writes the Temps. Several chiefs of important tribes have approached General Gouraud, declaring their loyalty to France.

Moreover, the French forces, operating to the north of Adana, have succeeded in restoring order in the whole of that district. The French garrison of Adana made a sortie from the town and drove back hostile bands, who left behind a considerable quantity of material.

Cairo, August 21.—It is reported from Haifa that Bedouin have attacked a train from Damascus killing a French officer and a Damascus notable and maltreating and robbing the other passengers.

Campaign Against Suffrage Opened By Tennesseeans

(Reuter's Service)

Nashville, (Tennessee), August 21.—A determined effort is being made by Anti-suffrage leaders to prevent the State Legislature "clinching the Federal Suffrage Amendment."

Some 30 members of the House of Representatives have left the State Capital to take part in the campaign. A motion to reconsider the vote on the Suffrage Amendment was, however, defeated in the House of Representatives by 50 votes to nil.

In any case, it is asserted, a number of legal technicalities will have to be cleared up before Tennessee's ratification of the Suffrage Amendment can be certified to Washington.

Yangtsze Fare Syndicate Faces Crisis As Member Threatens Withdrawal

China Navigation Company Proposes Severance Of Connections With Combine Which Claims To Have Improved Livelihood Of Compradores

The proposal of the China Navigation Company, of which Messrs. Butterfield and Swire are agents, to withdraw from the Yangtsze River Steamer Chinese Fare Syndicate, is causing no little interest among the Chinese shipping circles here. The combine, which consists of the compradores of practically all of the shipping companies doing business on the Yangtsze, claims to be performing useful service since its reorganization early in 1916.

As a result of the proposal, Mr. Sun Ti-chao, president of the board of directors of the syndicate, has tendered his resignation, while the board resents the action of the shipping company in asserting its right to withdraw the names of its compradores from the membership of the combine, which, it maintains, has assisted these compradores in their difficulties and secured the full payment of the contract prices to the shipping companies.

LEASE TO COMPRADORE

Under the present arrangement, it is understood, the companies allow their compradores to collect the entire proceeds for a certain length of time—generally a year—in consideration of a certain amount of "contract payments." The compradore pockets the difference if his collections amount to more than the contract price and has to sustain the loss, if he collects less than the contract price.

The combine, in organising the compradores, aimed to protect them from suffering excessive losses by distributing the profits of gaining compradores among the losing compradores, proportionately.

The China Navigation Company, it is alleged, proposes to increase their contract payments with their compradores and proposes to withdraw in order to take independent action.

SENDS MESSAGE

In letterr addressed to the local Yangtsze shipping companies, the board of directors of the syndicate complained of certain dissatisfaction created by some unknown factors, which are prejudiced against the syndicate and enclosed a copy of the history and work of the combine in which its usefulness is set forth.

The syndicate further requests each company to appoint a chartered accountant to audit its accounts and asked for instructions as to how to apportion the surplus to be made, if any, by the syndicate.

A sample copy of the letters follows:

"We respectfully beg to inform you that recently Butterfield and Swire has often misunderstood us. We guess there must be some unknown factors which are causing prejudice against us. Herewith we beg to present you a copy of a translation of the brief history of the Yangtsze River Steamers Chinese Fare Syndicate for your perusal.

TO AUDIT ACCOUNTS

"We also earnestly request you to appoint a public accountant to audit out accounts and afterwards give us instructions as to how to apportion the surplus.

"We are, however, unable under the present circumstance, to state whether we are making any profits or suffering any losses. This must be done after the months of August and September as you know these are the months when our business begins to decrease."

SYNDICATE'S WORK

A summary of the history of the syndicate is as follows: Before the organisation of the syndicate, the compradores of the steamers had their own way of competition in business.

Realising the difficulty in business unless they unite in a guild of solidarity, the compradores of the shipping firms formed an organisation known as the Pu Yih Syndicate, which was promoted by Messrs. Zia Hun-chong, the coal magnate, Chow Ling-shih and Kao Chi-fu who subscribed for the entire capital. Bad management is said to have caused it to fail with a loss of more than $80,000.

COMBINE REAPPEARS

One year later, the compradores found it difficult to make a living without organisation. Requests were made with the shipping companies to organise a syndicate, and approval was duly given. The Combine came into being under its present style on January 1, 1916. Mr. Chen Yen-ching was elected its first manager. When he announced he was unable to accept the post, Mr. Yu Sung-ting compradore of

Peking Holds Whip Hand Over Southern Factions

Whether Government Will Open Hostilities Against Yunnan Party Remains In Doubt

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 24.—Outside influences are said to be at work with General Tang Chi-yao and his followers. It is believed that the Government will shortly make up its mind whether or not to open hostilities against the Yunnan Party, which is threatening to send troops to Yicheng, Shensi, with the object of eventually driving General Wang Chuan-yuan from Hupeh, or of effecting another compromise.

General Chen Shu-fan, the Tuchun of Shensi, is said to be ready to co-operate with the Yunnan Party and his forces have been increased by the arrival of several thousands of Frontier Defense troops from Loyang, Honan.

The invasion of Fukien, by General Chen Chiung-ming's forces marks another step in the strife between Canton and Yunnan, according to Chinese opinion here. Knowing that the Government intended to remove him, General Li Hou-chi, Tuchun of Fukien, is said to have invited General Chen Chiung-ming's troops to enter Fukien to assist in driving out General Lu Yung-ting's troops after which General Li Hou-chi might be able to arrange for the division of Fukien. The Government has the choice therefore of making friends either with Canton or Yunnan and its union with either would place the other Southern Party in a hopeless situation.

The position of the Government is consequently felt to be very strong for although the remnants of the Anfuites are attempting to throw in their lot with the Yunnanese, the rest of the North remains solid and undivided. Movements of troops to Hankow indicates that the Government does not intend to allow the Yunnan troops unrestricted activity in the Yangtsze Valley.

Parliament will adjourn on August 31.

Japanese Problem Solved In Hawaii, Californian Says

(Reuter's Service)

San Francisco, August 20.—Mr. Chester H. Rowell, the well-known journalist and Director of the California Development Board, in the course of a speech at San Francisco today, said that Hawaii, after a bitter struggle has succeeded in placing the Japanese in a position, similar to that of the negro in the Southern United States.

He added that "in that the whites dominate the country, Hawaii furnishes California with a valuable object lesson."

Sugar Profiteers Are Hard Hit When Predictions Fail

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 21.—American sugar speculators are having a bad time. Their predictions that prohibition would lead to increased consumption of soft drinks and sweets have utterly failed to materialise and housewives are economising to the utmost. Moreover a great sugar-beet crop will shortly be available when it is expected that prices will fall to nearly pre-war level.

LOCAL SHOPS ASK TO BE EXEMPTED FROM STAMP TAX

Street Union And Other Bodies Send Telegram Of Protest

Protesting against the enforcement of the stamp tax in the International and French Settlements, the Federated Street Unions and a number of other Chinese commercial bodies yesterday addressed a telegram to the Ministry of Finance, asking it to rescind the order. Before the despatch of the telegram, the local bodies had received a wire from the Ministry asking them to conform to the wishes of the Central Government.

The message reads:

"Your telegram asking us to make use of the stamps in the new tax has been received. Following a meeting of the different societies, we decided to ask you once more to rescind the order enforcing this requirement.

"We, residents of the International and French Settlements, cannot recognise taxation without representation. Moreover, in the enforcement of the stamp tax, there will be discrimination between foreign and Chinese firms. This will simply make the bigger companies seek foreign registration, which will relieve them of their responsibility to observe this requirement. The smaller houses will be the only ones left to suffer.

"Looking at the question from your own viewpoint, it does not seem worth your while to engender all the public indignation for the sake of a limited amount of monetary returns.

"Under the present circumstance when we are suffering from extreme high cost of living, we are really unable to shoulder this additional burden, you will perform a great service to the people by rescinding the order at once and appease the minds of the petty merchants."

Effort To Dissolve Habarovsk Council Made In Vladivostok

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, August 23.—The Assembly has passed a resolution, dissolving the Habarovsk Municipal Council. This resolution caused a split amongst the members of the Council and some have resigned. The workmen at Habarovsk are satisfied with the resolution and have resumed work.

The Japanese Consul at Habarovsk states that armed action by either side will not be permitted. The Municipal Council cannot hold out for many days in view of the scarcity of funds at its disposal and the non-support of the population. The Mayor has tried to form an armed guard but has failed to secure arms. The Japanese are remaining strictly neutral and are keeping order.

FIRE ENDANGERS KIANGNAN PLANT; ONE SHOP BURNS

Settlement Brigade Answers Call For Aid And Helps Save Shipyard

Fire last night in the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Company's moulding shop, located in the center of the main group of structures of the big shipbuilding plant for some time threatened widespread destruction, but was subdued at length by the Chinese City Fire Brigade and workers in the yards after assistance had been given by the International Settlement Brigade.

The call for aid from the Settlement Brigade was received about 6 o'clock and in response Chief Officer Pett with a party of firemen set out at once in a motor car and were followed by the Brigade float under Supervising Fireman Puttergill.

It was found that the eastern end of the moulding shop adjoining the main machine and fitting shops was wrapped in flames against which a number of streams operated by dockyard workers were making but little progress. Under the direction of the Chief Officer of the Settlement Brigade firemen carried a line of hose to the roof of an adjoining shop which was then in flames. Effective work in checking the spread of the blaze was done by this stream which was also used to save the pattern making shop toward which the fire was sweeping.

After the arrival of the fire float a line of hose from the river was brought into operation and various jets got to work. It was only after several hours of uninterrupted effort that the blaze was finally brought under control. The river end of the moulding shop was partially destroyed together with a quantity of patterns, but the shops adjoining and their contents were saved.

No estimate of the extent of the loss had been made last night. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Warsaw Says Russians Are Being Pursued By Two Armies

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 20.—Every report, arriving from Poland, makes it clearer that the Poles have won an overwhelming victory and that the Russian armies are on the brink of disaster.

The Paris edition of the New York Herald writes: "It is becoming evident that the Polish victory is the work of France. General Weygand, Marshal Foch's Chief of Staff, is in supreme command actually, if not officially, and it is reported on good authority that the plan of battle was prepared by Marshal Foch himself.

Marshal Pilsudski, the President of Poland, who is ostensibly in command of the Polish armies, is actually leading a force in the field under France's orders. The Western wing and the Center of the Polish armies are under the direct command of the French Generals Henrys and Billotte and nearly 1,000 French officers are in the field while French non-commissioned officers are now in charge of artillery units and tanks.

TWO ARMIES FORMED

Paris, August 23.—According to reports from Warsaw published in the French press, the Polish General Staff has formed two armies of pursuit, the northern army being under the command of General Haller and the southern under the orders of the Marshal Commanding-in-Chief. The general objective is to force the pace in order to cut off the Red armies from their lines of retreat.

The number of prisoners captured by the Poles since August 15, totals 27,000. The Army of the Center in its advance has captured a large number of convoys.

The Petit Parisien quotes the following statement, made to the press by the Polish Minister in London: "We desire that peace shall be signed as soon as possible but we will not accept terms which would strike a blow at the independence of Poland."

TUAN CHI-KWEI IS UNDER FIRE

Document Said To Have Been Issued By Him Held To Be Violation Of Law

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 24.—General Wang Hua-thing, Commandant of the Peking Garrison, issued a proclamation yesterday, stating that he had discovered on the file of the Garrison Office a document signed by General Tuan Chi-kwei, when Commandant, declaring martial law in Peking on July 13.

This document, the proclamation states, had not received the official endorsement of the President or of any other responsible authority. Peking was not then in a state of siege nor were communications interrupted.

The proclamation concludes: "I have been duly authorised to assert that the document, therefore, constitutes a direct violation of the laws of China. Order in the capital has been fully restored and the Civil Administration is functioning normally therefore this proclamation of July 13 is hereby declared null and void."

It is believed that General Wang's proclamations bears also upon the declaration of martial law at Tientsin by General Yang Yi-teh.

Chang And Tsao Kun Give Fealty Pledges

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, August 21.—The Tientsin Yi Shih Pao, commenting on Tuesday's Government Conference at the President's Palace, says:

"It was a brilliant gathering in the Presidential Office yesterday when all the Chihli-Fengtien Leaders, the Cabinet Ministers and other influential officials came together. The most commendable feature of it is that Generals Tsao Kun and Chang Tso-lin, representing the whole Chihli-Fengtien army, pledged their devoted allegiance to the Central Government and promised to be the first to carry out the retrenchment and demobilisation policies in their provinces. This was very wise of them and they will be still wiser if they actually keep their word. We are not doubting the sincerity of the two Generals, but we cannot but entertain some apprehension as to the execution of these measures, as very few of the Tuchuns have done it, and some are even trying to extend their military power and strengthen their personal position.

REVIEWS HISTORY

"Since 1916 and 1917 the Government has been decentralised and the Military Governors have built up their military power. The militarists frequently demand funds from the Government and squander them away at will. They make all sorts of exactions to make themselves rich and powerful. The army consumes tens of millions of dollars of the state revenue annually, and the positions of all the militarists are built up by money instead of iron and blood. Army administrative expenditures, which were only several hundred thousand dollars in the past, have now increased to several millions of dollars, and the Tuchuns' bodyguards have increased from a battalion to a brigade or even a division at present. Owing to factional strife there are huge expenses for espionage, subsidies and the conduct of campaigns. These are the obstacles to the execution of the retrenchment policy.

TUCHUNS INDEPENDENT

"Ever since the breach between the North and South every province has freely enlisted recruits and thus broken up the national army system. Despite the suspension of hostilities and the Government's order for disbandment the Tuchuns have never obeyed and, under the excuse of the importance of local order, have changed the name of a certain contingent or reorganised it under another system. In fact no troops have been disbanded. There may be one or two provinces which have demobilised some troops because of the difficulty of paying them, but as most of these troops were originally bandits, they would lead the same life after the disbandment and create disturbances in their districts. In this sense the disbanded soldiers are even more dangerous than those under discipline.

"We hope that Generals Tsao and Chang will see to it that the retrenchment policy will not affect the efficiency of the administration and that the disbandment measures will not affect local peace and order. Furthermore, as the Tuchuns are largely responsible for the increase in expenditure and the enlargement of the army, it is to be hoped that the two generals will even sacrifice the Tuchun system for the welfare of the country."

Japanese Entertained By Peking Students' Union

Reception For Nipponese Visitors Is Held At University—Federation Project Discussed

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, August 21.—Eight Japanese students of the Asiatic Students' Federation, who are now in Peking on a visit, were entertained by the Peking Students' Union at the Government University yesterday afternoon. The reception was opened with a speech of welcome by Lin Pao-che.

In response to Mr. Lin's speech one of the Japanese students represented his group in thanking the Chinese students for their hospitality. The Peking student representatives then asked about the organisation of the Asiatic Students' Federation and its object. In reply the Japanese students stated that the Federation was organised last March for the promotion of friendship and good will between the student bodies of the various countries in Asia and was based on the principles of righteousness and humanity. As to the organisation of the Federation, opinions still differ greatly and nothing has been decided as yet.

VOICES CRITICISM

The Peking Students then stated that the tide of the Twentieth Century was turning toward the good of the world as a whole but not towards the welfare of any of one section of it; and that the formation of the Asiatic Students' Federation seemed to be from China's point of view, based on racial prejudices of which they could not approve. The Chinese added, that the militarists and capitalists of the two countries were the main obstacles to friendship between China and Japan, and they expressed the hope that the Japanese delegates would see to it that these obstacles were removed. Then the two countries would naturally and easily become friendly towards each other. At the same time they pledged China's citizens to take adequate measures to deal with those militarists in their own country who are joining hands with the Japanese.

In conclusion the Chinese students requested the Japanese to extend their aim for the welfare of the people in Asia on a righteous basis to a struggle for the good of the world as a whole. For, in benefiting the whole world, they would benefit the various countries in it, and the welfare of society implies also the welfare of the individuals of which it is composed.

TALKS OF AIMS

Lin Pao-che, speaking in behalf of the Chinese, then said: "Now, you say that your aim in organising the Asiatic Students' Federation is to promote friendship between the countries in Asia. But, your Minister here is granting asylum to Hsu Shu-cheng and other Chinese criminals, and your country is suppressing the independent movement in Korea. Of course all these acts are done by your militarists, but, at any rate, you Japanese nationals cannot make any excuses for keeping idle under such conditions." At this point, a Japanese student stood up and said: "We also are opposed to the actions of our militarists and our people are just beginning to see through the militarist policy."

The Peking student representatives then expressed opinions favoring equality between the races, universal suffrage, and a republican form of government. The Japanese students, however, deemed it impossible for them to carry out these projects just at present. On the other hand, the Chinese students are convinced that all these matters depend upon the efforts made for their furtherance by the young citizens of the country. They also believe that a Students' Federation should be a world federation rather than one for the development of friendship between the countries of Asia alone. The meeting finally adjourned with the Chinese and Japanese students differing radically on this point.

and also at the Government-General Building and the police stations in order to create complications in the relations between America and Japan and also to plunge the Koreans into a state of unrest, thus accelerating the independence movement. More arrests are expected."

Tokio, August 23.—The Yomiuri and Yamato, two of the leading morning newspapers of Japan, have issued special editions, entirely in English, dealing with the subject of American-Japanese relations. The editions are having a vast circulation. They are attractively illustrated and the typography is excellent.

The text includes articles from the pen of the Premier, Mr. Hara, Baron Shibusawa, the Nestor of Japanese Finance, Marquis Okuma, the ex-Premier, Mr. Junnosuke Inouye, Governor of the Bank of Japan, and other leading lights of politics, finance and commerce, positively asserting and demonstrating the desire for the fullest understanding between America and Japan.

The editions are intended to welcome the American Congressional Party on the occasion of their visit to Japan, but they are really regarded as a valuable reflection of popular opinion in Japan.

The government have issued a warning to Japanese newspapers against the publicaton of editorials which are calculated to create international discord or a false impression among the masses in Japan. The step has been taken because some newspapers recently catered for popularity by answering in kind attacks by the Hearst newspapers in America, especially the Hearst organs on the California coast.

Chekiang Tuchun And Governor Are Agreed On Policy

Utmost harmony in existing between General Lu Yung-hsiang, the Chekiang Tuchun and Mr Shen Chin-chien, the newly appointed Civil Governor of the province, according to a high authority who returned from Hangchow yesterday.

Before the appointment of Mr Shen, rumors were current that General Lu wanted to hold the office concurrently, but General Lu himself at that time was noncommittal. When Mr. Shen arrived in Hangchow to take up his post, he was received and entertained by the tuchun for over two hours in spite of his indisposition.

A discussion over the general political situation took place when General Lu returned his call and it is ascertained that General Lu is in absolute concord with the views of Mr. Shen in civil administration.

Y.M.C.A. YOUTHS AID POOR BOYS

Classes In Hygiene Are Being Conducted By Them For "Little Brothers"

The Y.M.C.A. boy members have been teaching poor boys in the outskirts of Shanghai some simple lessons in hygiene during the summer and are now preparing to continue the classes but change the text from health to a few elementary school subjects such as arithmetic, character writing and reading, also games and personal hygiene.

The first event each day in the school is inspection and the second is good washing, with soap, by those who need it.

This is the same program that the "Y" has used for the past two years with over 140 boys whom they call "Little Brothers" and bring to the Szechuen Road building every Sunday afternoon. At first every boy had to participate in the big wash but now nearly the entire group comes clean.

This plan, applied in the villages and outskirts of Shanghai, will no doubt change the life course of many of the boys who are now headed for life-jobs as beggars or petty thieves. Old clothes will be collected and the children taught to make garments and shoes and do some simple hand work with bamboo, straw or wicker.

The "Y" hopes to co-operate with other organisations or people who are interested in such work until every village near Shanghai has a small school which will be a rallying center for the children and from which the worthy ones may be helped into some useful life work and others saved from the ranks of beggars and criminals.

The students (more than 200 of them) who have worked in the health campaign during the summer have expressed a willingness to continue to work on this new cause during the winter. The fact that boys from well-to-do homes are willing to work for these ignorant and miserable boys is one of the signs of a new spirit in China. May it grow and spread until that spirit of brotherhood, that will eliminate the beggar class, is established.

CHINESE FIGURE IN STABBING ON STEAMER TAMAHA

A Chinese pantry boy will be charged in the Mixed Court this morning for stabbing and killing a mess boy on board the Tamaha the British vessel plying for the Standard Oil Co. from San Francisco for Hankow. It put in at Woosung Monday afternoon. A remand will be asked for pending the return of the vessel from Hankow. The tragedy took place on August 17 in the galley of the ship.

The body of the victim was discovered by the officer in charge, Mr. D. Macdonald, in a pool of blood and removed to the deck, examined and life pronounced extinct. The deceased was then buried at sea. It is understood that the chief and the second cook saw part of the quarrel before the fatal blow was struck.

the China Navigation Co., was named to succeed him.

In spite of the efforts of the compradores to work together, the syndicate was again in a state of ruin after a few months. During the first year of its existence, each compradore who was a member of the syndicate suffered a loss of $4,500.

BOARD CREATED

The question of the necessity of a board of directors to supervise the workings of the syndicate was raised and it was decided to elect two directors to represent each company on the board. The board in turn elects its own president. Mr. Sun Ti-chou, compradore of the China Merchants' steamer Kiangtoo was elected to the presidency.

A reorganisation immediately took place, and business increased. There soon existed, it is maintained, a mutual tearing among the shipping compradores and the syndicate. The former felt that they would be disabled if they did not have this intermediary among them. The shipping companies, too, realised its importance as otherwise there would be a shortage of contract payments from their compradores.

ASSERTS USEFULNESS

The board in the message recalls an incident in 1918 when a compradore of China Merchants' Steam Navigation Co. wanted to sever his connections with the syndicate. It was the China Navigation Company that protested and told the China Merchants that the latter would be thenceforth held responsible of any shortage of payment from their compradores if the latter's compradore carried out his plan.

The board further asserts that since the reorganisation of the syndicate, there has been no default in payment to the companies no matter how much loss the compradores may sustain. Even though the syndicate's business increased last year, each compradore suffered a loss of over $1,500 on account of accidental trouble.

TERMS TO ALBANIA OFFERED BY ITALY

Government At Tirana To Be Recognised And The Country Evacuated

SASENO ISLAND FOR ITALY

Rome Government Also To Be Reimbursed For Expenses Of Civil Organisation

Rome, July 3.—The Italian situation at Aviona remains stationary, though the insurgents continue to enroll troops and remain in considerable numbers around the city. Baron Aliotti, sent by the Italian Government to negotiate an Italo-Albanian understanding, has gone to Durazzo to open negotiations. Meanwhile the press here gives as certain the following basis of agreement, viz:

Acknowledgment by the Italian Government of the Albanian Government at Tirana.

A promise that Albania shall administer her provinces without foreign influence.

Evacuation of Italian troops from the whole of Albania.

Liberty for the Albania nation to arm itself in order to defend its national integrity.

Permission conceded Italy to construct works for naval defense and a wireless station on Saseno Island, opposite Aviona, which is to be occupied by Italian troops.

Reimbursement to Italy of expenses incurred in Albania for civil organisation.

The Idea Nazionale, the Nationalist organ, considers this would be going too far, since Giolitti himself declared that Italy could not leave Aviona exposed to occupation by any other power, and promised that only when Albania was "reorganised entirely and solidly constituted" would it be possible to negotiate a complete agreement with Albania regarding Aviona.

Since Albania is not yet able to defend her territorial integrity, the Idea Nazionale deprecates immediate execution of such a wide program, which does not guarantee that Italy's retirement would not be an opportunity for another power's advance.

The Tribuna publishes an interview with an American journalist just returned from a long stay with the Albanian troops. Asked the reasons which changed the Albanians of the Aviona Hinterland from friends to foes, the American said the Albanians believed themselves betrayed by Italy. They said that while Italy assured the Albanians she wished to respect and defend the integrity of Albania she negotiated an agreement between Tittoni and Venizelos which gave South Albania to the Greeks.

Greek agents published this news throughout Albania, causing profound disappointment and loss of faith in Italy as the protectress of Albanian independence. The illusion was confirmed when they knew the contents of the London-Paris compromise this year when, instead of safeguarding Albanian autonomy, Italy appeared to acquiesce in the use of Albania as a pawn for mutual compensation and concessions between the Allies, permitting Scutari to be offered Jugo-Slavia and South Albania to the Greeks.

Added to this was Italy's hesitation to acknowledge the Tirana Government and petty friction between the Albanians and Italian military, all of which combined to rouse the resentment against Italy which has culminated in the present attack.

The Albanians demand throughout Albania, even in Aviona, a purely Albanian administration, while acknowledging that Italy should have a strategic defensive point of vantage in Aviona Bay.

The American journalist concluded by saying that Albanian public opinion is a unit in demanding autonomy and independence from Italy and believe that this once obtained they will be strong enough to protect themselves from both Greek and Jugo-Slava intrigues.

A. E. JAMES, OE KOBE, IS STAR IN JAPAN SWIMMING MEET; SHANGHAI SUPERIOR AT POLO

Wallin Delights With His Shooting And "Juggling;" Visitors Superior To Homesters In Team Events

Owing to the pressure on space of our Sporting page the subjoined account, taken from the Japan Chronicle of August 13, 14 and 15, of the last three days of the recent interport water polo and swimming meeting between Shanghai and Kobe at Mirume, Kobe, Japan has been unavoidably held over, but "better late than never" and it will interest our local fans who may not have had access to the journal in question to read the details as projected by the Kobe press:

Kobe played their second water polo match against Shanghai on Thursday, August 12, and sustained an even more crushing defeat than that which befell them the previous day. It was a very one-sided affair, as the visitors had very much their own way from the outset—their splendid combination and complete understanding of each other's play being delightful to watch.

There was only one alteration in the Kobe team in this match, C. W. Myers being substituted for W. P. James at right forward. This could hardly be called a successful change, for the original player gave a decidedly more effective display than his substitute.

Shanghai defended the Boathouse end in the first half. No sooner had the game opened than the visitors made a determined dash towards the Kobe goal, with the result that within a couple of minutes Wallin, again playing in his inimitable style, scored the first of a series of goals. His display throughout was pleasant to watch, his dribbling and shots at all angles being truly astonishing. He also appears to have the useful acquisition of juggling, for he flicked the ball about in such a manner that his unfortunate opponent was often at a loss what had precisely happened to the elusive leather.

Another bright feature was the combination between Wallin and Encarnacao, which was extremely effective, for between the two of them they piled up 7 goals. Encarnacao made a couple of rattling good shots from left wing which gave C. R. Kerr in goal small chance. The half-time score stood at 4-0 in Shanghai's favor.

The second session was similar to the first, inasmuch that shots came in fast and furious, with an additional three goals to the visitor's credit.

For Kobe, A. E. James again gave a very good display and many a duel with MacCabe, the excellent Shanghai half-back, became quite a battle for possession.

The goals scored for Shanghai are to the credit of B. Wallin (4), C. E Encarnacao (3) and J. B. Brown (1).

Shanghai having won the first two games successively there will be no necessity of a third game.

SWIMMING EVENTS

The first swimming race of the Interport between Kobe and Shanghai took place last night under conditions which were far from ideal, the sea being in a very choppy state, and both tide and wind were adverse factors which the participants had to combat against.

Kobe was represented by A. E James and W. P. James, and Shanghai by J. B. Brown and E. F. Mears.

At the word from Mr. C. J. Williams, acting as starter, the four made an excellent plunge, all striking the water simultaneously. The pace put up at the initial stage was exceedingly fast for such a choppy sea. For the first 20 yards it was difficult to distinguish who had taken the lead, as all were doing the "crawl" stroke in such a vigorous manner that the foam set up quite smothered them. At the half-way line Mears had the lead by a few feet but after this the pace became too hot and he began to lag. Brown then took the first position. A. E. James, however was keeping a steady pace and holding a close third. Another twenty yards and the race presented quite a different aspect for A. E. James, apparently holding himself in reserve until this point, began spurting. He first overtook Mears and then Brown. Mears came in third. The time for the race was 1:35 secs.

The next event was the half-mile after an interval of thirty minutes to give both Brown and W. P. James a rest from the previous ordeal.

Kobe: H. M. Arab, J. Helm, P. Houghton and W. T. James.

Shanghai: J. B. Brown, R. W. MacCabe, C. E. Ozario and B. Wallin.

From the very beginning Wallin took the lead with a very powerful "toudgeon" stroke and the rest until about a third of the way with the exception of Arab who dropped out in the very early stage, were keeping much together. But it was not long after this that the positions began to vary. Brown put up a splendid fight, and considering that he had just finished the previous race it was a commendable and plucky display. At the quarter mile he was not far behind Wallin with Houghton swimming gamely, a close third. And it was in this order that the race eventually terminated. If Houghton had not taken such a devious course he would very probably have made it a near thing for second place, but he lost much time by the error. The fourth place became an exciting duel between MacCabe and Helm, but the extra effort by the visitor won this place for Shanghai.

Shanghai 1st, 2nd and 4th place.

Kobe 3rd and 5th place.

The K. R. & A. C. Aquatic sports which were held yesterday (Aug. 14) at Mirume in conjunction with the Interport events against Shanghai was a very successful affair, and the large number of spectators who made their way to Mirume had the satisfaction of witnessing an enjoyable and interesting afternoon's sport. Early in the afternoon the weather looked very doubtful, but fortunately, although a shower of rain was experienced, the sky afterwards cleared and remained so for the rest of the day. The swimming conditions were, however, a decidedly different matter and the high seas coupled with a strong cross-wind, was much to the discomfort of the contestants. The sea was running so high that passengers on the launch had great difficulty in disembarking at the pier.

At a meeting of the K. R. & A. C. swimming committee it was arranged that the Interport events between Shanghai and Kobe should be decided by the team which won the most points allotted in the following manner—5 points for first place in individual races, 3 for second and 1 for third. The award for the team race to be 5 points.

Shanghai as a team were ultimately superior to Kobe. They were a better all-round class of swimmers and had it not been for the effort of A. E. James it would have been a sad day for Kobe. Both the team race and the 220 yds. gave ample evidence of this. In the latter, although James came in well ahead, the 2nd, 3rd and 4th place went to Shanghai, leaving the remainder of the Kobe team far behind. The decision on aggregate points goes to Shanghai —35 points to Kobe's 33, a win by a narrow margin of 2. Until the last event—throwing the polo ball—Kobe was 1 point to the good, but the loss of both 1st and 3rd place gave an additional 6 points to the visitors, and to Kobe 3 (2nd place). On direct wins Kobe was much ahead, for the 100 yds. 25 yds., 50 yds., Diving and 220 yds, go to her credit and Shanghai the 880 yds., team race and throwing the polo ball.

RESULTS OF RACES

25 Yards

Shanghai: T. W. R. Wilson and J. B. Brown.

Kobe: A. E. James and E. W. Slade.

A. E. James (1), Slade (2), Brown (3).

It was a very near thing between Slade and Brown for 2nd place.

50 Yards

Shanghai: E. F. Mears and J. B. Brown.

Kobe : A. E. James and E. W. Slade.

A. E. James (1), Mears (2) and Brown (3). This was an exciting race between James and Mears. Within the last few yards James managed to get away by about three quarters of a length.

Interport Diving

Shanghai: E. F. Mears, J. B. Brown and B. Wallin.

Kobe: (winners of local competition.)

Judges: Messrs. C. J. Williams, E. W. Slade and T. R. MacDonald.

The judging of this was at times very difficult, but after the three judges had totalled the points awarded it was found that G. McKay (Kobe) and J. B. Brown (Shanghai) had tied for first place with 242 points each. Both diving off the spring board and standing dives were included in the test. The judges decided that the two should have a deciding dive each, and on this having been accomplished the result went in McKay's favor. W. M. Carst (Kobe) was third.

220 Yards

Shanghai: J. B. Brown, E. F. Mears, C. E. Encarnacao and B. Wallin.

Kobe: A. E. James, J. T. Helm, W. P. James and P. Houghton.

When this race took place the sea was at its worst and the great effort which had to be made for any headway made the race a very gruelling one. The start was made from a launch and as soon the faces were distinguishable in the foam it was seen that Albert James held the lead. He gradually increased his advantage up to the end, finally winning quite easily by 4 lengths. Wallin and Brown had a good tussle for 2nd place, with Mears a near third.

Team Race

Shanghai: J. B. Brown, C. E. Encarnacao, E. F. Mears, B. Wallin and T. W. P. Wilson.

Kobe: C. R. Kerr, J. T. Helm, A. E. James, G. McKay and E. W. Slade.

The gain of about three lengths made by Encarnacao over Kerr gave Shanghai a substantial lead at the onset which was increased slightly until the two last men A. E. James and Mears started, but the lead already won was far too much to make up and it ended in an easy win for Shanghai by 4 lengths.

Throwing the Polo Ball.—Won by R. W. MacCabe (63 yds.). 2nd A. E. James, 3rd T. W. R. Wilson.

This concluded the events.

Later the prizes were presented by Mrs. J. H. Muller under the direction of Mr. P. H. McKay, the President, who afterwards spoke a few words in commendation of the winners and in thanks to the visitors who had given them such interesting sport.

The arrangement made by the Committee were excellent and everything went smoothly except the sea.

Buffalo Bill Had Nothing On This Marksman

"Bob" Emslie's ability as a wing shot being the subject of discussion, a bunch of ball fans proceeded to tell of remarkable shots. This one was awarded the "cookies:"

"Home in Ireland there was man who used to stand on one side of a barn, after placing a boy on the other side with a gun pointing upward. As a crow would come flying over the barn to a cornfield the man would cry out, 'Shoot!'

"The boy would pull the trigger—mind you, he couldn't see the crow—and the shot would bring down the crow."

SOME shot!

RIFLEMEN HOLD MONTHLY SHOOT; LUTHY HIGH GUN

Marksman Scores Remarkable Record Of 49; Ten Bulls Out Of Eleven

The second monthly competition of the Shanghai Rifle Association was held yesterday in the afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock. Range, Bisley 200 yards. The weather conditions were excellent and some good scores were registered.

C. Luthy of A1 class made a wonderful score of 49 points out of a possible score 50 (ten bulls out of eleven shots). There were about fifty members competing.

Following are the results of the five best scores in each class:

A1 Class

C. Luthy	49	(a)
F. E. Hodges	46
F. W. Snape	45
A. M. Collaco	43
G. F. Ashley	43
W. T. Rose	43

A Class

C. Reeves	47	(a)
A. L. Mottu	45
R. G. H. Cole	44
O. Erzinger	44
H. Noisshiki	43

B Class

M. G. Brawley	42	(a)
M. Iijima	41
G. Richardson	40
G. M. Neal	40

A. C. Godby	37

D Class

C. G. Hoh	44	(b)
Y. Tamura	37
Y. Matsumoto	33
T. Fujii	32
Y. C. Waung	29

(a) First leg on cup and winners of spoon.

(b) Fourth leg on cup, cup won outright and promoted to "A1" class. Mr. C. G. Hoh has made a record in winning the monthly competitions four times in succession and making an average of 89 percent thus promoting him from "D" to "A1" class. Mr. Hoh is a new shot and he will be a contender for the forthcoming British .303 rifle championship.

POOL SHOOTING

A pool shoot was held yesterday morning during the long ranges practice (900 and 1000 yards) when 16 members participated. J. Macbeth won the High Gun with 83 points. H. Noisshiki was tied and lost in the count out. Conditions were 2 sighters and 10 scoring shots at each distance.

Following is the result of the five best scores:

Names	900	1000	Total

Americans Far In Lead At Meeting At Antwerp

Athletes From United States At Olympic Games Score 179 To Date; Sweden 68

(Reuter's Service)

Antwerp, August 21.—The United States still heads the list of competing nations in the Olympic Games with a total to date of 179 points. Sweden is now second with 68 points and Great Britain third with 67.

MAY ALTER PROGRAM

London, August 21.—A telegram from Antwerp reports that the Olympic Games Board has decided to reduce the program of games to purely athletic sports, for example running, jumping, swimming, wrestling and boxing. Other games may be held simultaneously, but will not be considered Olympic. The exact program will be settled at the Lausanne meeting in June, 1921, when the place for the 1924 games, probably Rome or Paris, will be selected.

Reuter's special correspondent at the Olympic Games, however, telegraphing later from Antwerp, states that he is informed that there is no truth in the report that future meetings will be confined to purely athletic sports.

"The Olympic Games Board discussed certain possibilities," the correspondent says, "but there was no attempt to bring the matter to the vote, and there is no fear of actual steps being taken in the matter of altering the program before the Board meets at Lausanne."

NEW RECORD

Antwerp, August 21.—The following events were decided in the Olympic Games today:

400 Meters Relay Race. Final:

Won by the United States. Time: 42 1-5 seconds, which constitutes a new record. The British Isles was fourth.

Throwing the Discus. Final:

Won by Nicklander (Finland).

3,000 Meters Walk. Final:

Frigerio (Italy)	1
Parker (Australia)	2
Remer (America)	3
McMaster (South Africa)	4

Time: 13 mins. 14 1-5 secs.

Hop, Step and Jump:

Tuulos (Finland)	1
Jansson (Sweden)	2
Almlof (Sweden)	3

The winner covered 14 meters 50½ centimeters.

56lb. Weight Throwing:

W. J. McDonald (America)	1
P. Ryan (America)	2
Lind (Sweden)	3

The winner threw 11 meters 26½ centimeters.

New Giant Fielder Kauff's Double

"Why, there's Benny Kauff out in center field," said a fan at the Polo Grounds recently. "I thought the Giants had traded him for this bird, Spencer, of Toronto."

"So it is," said his friend, as he studied the player out in center field, while the Braves took their turn at bat in the opening inning. "They must have changed their minds about trading Benny."

As the Giants came in from the field at the end of the inning the fans had a chance to get a close-up view of the Giants' centerfielder, but it was not until he got to the bench that they discovered the player was not Kauff, but Spencer, for the new centerfielder resembles Benny closely in build and general appearance.

BANE OF FIFTEENTH INFANTRY STRIKES OUT 14 MEN AND WINS FROM NAVY BY SCORE OF 1 TO 0

Tientsin Pitcher Allows But Four Hits In One Of Hardest Fought Contests Seen On Diamond Here— Play Shanghai Thursday

BY VIOLA VERCLAIRE

In a game of ball that only took one hour and twenty minutes to play, the 15th Infantry of Tientsin defeated the Navy to the beautiful tune of 1 to 0.

It certainly was some base ball and the fans were on edge until the last man was out in the ninth inning.

Bane, pitching for the Infantry, was sure the "candy kid" in the pitching line. He struck out fourteen Navy sluggers and only allowed four hits. One doesn't see better pitching than that anywhere.

Merrill, for the Navy, pitched a fine game and would have won most any other game but yesterday's. His only trouble was "too much Bane." One noticable feature of the game yesterday was the lack of errors, there being only three made during the game, two by the Infantry and one by the Navy.

GREAT BASEBALL

It is too bad that there is not more interest taken by the fans in this series of base ball games. There is no better brand of ball being played anywhere in the world than has been put up during this series. When you can go out to a game of ball and see two men cut off at the home plate, twenty strike-outs, only three errors and just enough hitting to make a 1 to 0 score, it is well worth your time and money. Moral—Be there Thursday at 4:30 p.m. 15th Infantry vs. Shanghai.

Ninth inning, Navy—Oliver struck out. Goodman hit to left. Pruitt hit to pitcher to second to first, double play. Infantry did not bat.

Just Dope

Standing of teams in this series:

	Games	Won	Lost
15th Infantry	4	3	1
Shanghai	3	2	1
Navy	3	0	3

Bane sure turned in a beautiful game for the Infantry yesterday. He also got two good hits, one of them scoring Bowden for the only run of the game.

The umpiring in yesterday's game was almost perfect. Nobody seemed to have any legitimate kick at any time, on anything.

Another great game is expected when Shanghai and the Infantry cross bats on Thursday. This game is sure to draw a record breaking crowd.

Egyptian Flies And Ruins

At Luxor The Tourist Becomes Acquainted With Insects And Masonry

BY JOHN P. YOUNG

We were able to restrain our impatience sufficiently after our installation at the Hotel Luxor to remove some of the Egyptian dust accumulated during the morning ride, but the temptation to visit before nothing ruins which had appealed to my imagination for nearly a lifetime was almost irresistible. There they were, almost in plain sight of the hotel; nothing but a bath and three minutes' walk between the realisation of my eager desire, but the conventionalities triumphed, and the ruins had to wait, as they have waited during the centuries, while I performed the prosaic, every-day feat of cleaning the person.

This latter performance to my notion is a very enervating act under some circumstances, and it seemed to work out that way in this instance, for the decided acquisition of comfort which followed made the attractions of the hotel garden seem powerfully alluring. In any other place than Egypt one would not reckon the grounds of the hotel as very beautiful; they contained nice walks and a number of trees, whose chief attraction after their shade-producing qualities was that unfamiliarity of variety which appeals so strongly to the inhabitant of the temperate regions of Europe and America, to whom the palm and the rubber are exotic plants.

Their attractiveness was accentuated by the presence of numerous chairs, disposed to make the most of their shade, and while awaiting the slower processes of the feminine toilet I succumbed to it. But not for long. I speedily discovered that there is always a fly in the honey of Egyptian pleasure or, to be exact, myriads of them and that they are no more disposed to respect the desire for repose of the well-quartered tourist than of the wretched fellaheen who endures their attacks apparently oblivious of the fact that they are being made.

The wave movement of the sigh of contentment with which I sank into a specially inviting chair had scarcely ceased to agitate the circumambient air when it was disturbed by an explosion resembling an impolite expletive. The flies of Egypt were upon me and I was compelled to retreat, or what amounted to the same thing, abandon the garden and keep in motion. A resort to active movement helped the matter a trifle, but I was only able to beat off the invaders after discovering a kiosk in the grounds where small objects are sold to travelers, the chief stock in trade of which seemed to be fly brushes.

They were of all kinds, some made of split palm leaves, with woven handles of the same; others were elaborate, alleged to be from Soudan, with ivory handles, and some with handles made of the hide of the rhinoceros, for which fancy prices were demanded. I chose the cheapest, feeling at the time that a souvenir of Egypt which would be a reminder of its most disagreeable feature was hardly a desirable thing, yet those fly whisks are today staring me in the face and help to conjure up memories of Luxor and Karnak, while, somehow or others, the fly annoyance has almost ceased to have a place in my mind. Thus it is with most inconveniences; they are merely affairs of the present; when the period of their endurance has passed the memory of their infliction weakens and finally passes away.

The only member of the Augusta Victoria's party outside ourselves who had the good fortune to be put up at the Luxor Hotel was a Mr. Whiting of Newark, N. J., with whom we became well acquainted during the remainder of the trip, although we had scarcely known him aboard the ship. Mr. Whiting had his peculiar views respecting sightseeing, and as they were in harmony with mine we got along very well together, especially as he showed a disposition to do all the bargaining and a general inclination to take upon himself the business of looking after things, due, undoubtedly to his active temperament, which scorned repose.

Before Dot had made her appearance on the scene he had discovered that the temple of Luxor was next door, so to speak, to the hotel, and that the guide book's directions to see it after visiting Karnak was all wrong. "Instead of following Baedeker's advice," said he, "we'll follow our noses and drop in on Rameses II, get lunch and then go to Luxor." It developed that while we were wasting our time wrestling with the problem of dust eradication he had seen Luxor, and was so well crammed with information extracted from his Baedeker that we were able to dispense with the misinformation of the badly equipped fellows who, in dislocated English, offered their services, and who insisted on following us about and imparting scraps of shaky history to convince us that they could make themselves useful.

Their presence was the only drawback to thorough enjoyment of the inspection of a wonderful ruin. I am not sure that it was conducted in precisely the same fashion that I should have adopted had I not surrendered myself to Whiting's guidance, who insisted on getting a distinct idea of size and distances by the use of a tape line and by pacing. For my part I was willing to accept the figures of the guide book, but Mr. Whiting declared that the impression produced on him would be more enduring if he corroborated Mr. Baedeker, and he intimated that it would afford him keen delight if he could catch the "Dutchman" tripping. I have no recollection that he succeeding in doing so, but I am ready to concede that his theory of the promotion of vividness has something in it, for it seems that I can recall particular columns, and parts of colossi which we measured so distinctly that when I attempt to sort out my memories I recognise them as old friends.

Mr. Whiting was specially exercised concerning the accuracy of the statement that the temple in its completed form was 852 feet in length, and mourned the fact that his tape was too short to make a precise measurement conveniently, but he satisfied himself that the figures were not far out of the way by pacing. It was amusing to watch the guides and the ever-present seekers of backsheesh following him, and shouting their accomplishments, the mere profession of which I clearly saw was laying the foundation of a demand for remuneration.

But these amusing features of the visit to the ruins of the temple were subordinate to the real interest it inspired. I am quite sure that my investigation was not minute enough to enable me to distinguish between the accomplishments of different dynasties, for even while I stood beneath the massive walls I felt a serene indifference to periods and hardly tried to recall that between the date of its construction by Amenophis III on the site of a still older temple and our own time, it had been added to greatly and had undergone many vicissitudes.

My special wonderment in viewing this temple, which dates back nearly 3,400 years, was over the objects of its builders. What purpose animated the Pharaohs who first began its construction in making it so massive. Considering the fact that the Egyptians generally manifested a marked predilection for less substantial style, and that even the Pharaohs within the inclosures of their vast palaces and temples were satisfied, as are the Japanese of today, with very simple structures, it is rather remarkable that the persistent aim of the great rulers and the priesthood, from the time of the ancient empire when the three great temples of Gizeh were built, should have been to make their monuments enduring.

Was religious aspiration really at the bottom of their effort, or were they merely obedient to the instinctive megalomania which seems to have its greatest development in the bosoms of highly civilised people? We permit ourselves to believe that the cathedrals with spires piercing the sky were called into existence by a desire to point heavenward, but it is impossible to study the tendency of our own strictly utilitarian age without noting that moderns are apparently anxious to erect monuments rivaling those of antiquity and oftener than otherwise they are dedicated to mammon.

I believe that the great temples and pyramids were built in response to the desire to achieve, and that in antiquity, as at present, rulers and their subjects, whenever they did anything which appeared to resemble a violation of economic laws, sought an excuse for it. Religion furnished the most convenient one at that time. Later, as during the time of Louis XIV national glory was the idea which solaced the French people when they witnessed the extravagance displayed in the creation of Versailles, and in our own days, in which we boast of the decadence of superstition, we appease our consciences by assuming that the mighty structures in which the operations of commerce are carried on, such as grandiose railway stations, monumental warehouses and store-rooms, are objects of utility.

Whatever the impelling cause, the result must have been awe-inspiring. Perhaps the desire to achieve this was the mainspring of Egyptian architectural endeavor. We can form some conception of the dominating influence which the enormous structures of the Pharaohs exercised by examining our own minds to ascertain the impression made by a vast cathedral in a European city near whose walls are clustered human habitations which, by force of contrast, appear like hovels. The insolent shadows of these mighty edifices were so dark it was impossible for the light to penetrate the minds of those who lived beneath them.

When Luxor was at the height of its splendor, after Rameses II had added the enormous colossal portraits of himself and the two pink granite obelisks that faced the colonnaded court which he erected, how could the wretched tiller of the soil or the mechanic who toiled in the city of which the temple was the imposing center help believing that he was something more than mortal?

Thoughts like these occupied my mind while Mr. Whiting was busy ascertaining the girth of the colossi with his tape line, and reporting that there was no doubt whatever that the two sitting statues were forty-five feet high, as represented. What a magnificent spectacle the gorgeous processions devised by the priests must have presented as they entered the principal pylon which these effigies of Rameses fronted! And how little must the thought of the cost of securing such a show have disturbed the people is demonstrated by the fact that the rule of these creators of colossal buildings and images endured during milenniums and might still exist if outside barbarians had not broken in to disturb the peace and quiet of the land of the Pharaohs.

WALKS WITH 100 YEARS

So A Statesman Learns Wisdom That Helps Solve His Problems

It is said that a certain statesman, before making a judgment, takes a walk with a hundred years. Sometimes he walks backward with a hundred years, sometimes forward.

There are many pleasant companions on a walk. To some men a cane is a silent companion, even as it was to Christian on his way to the Holy City; to others a dog makes a good walking comrade, and to others again a close and intimate friend who is not afraid of silence at times or of conversation.

But there can be no better companion on a walk than a hundred years. The first triumphs of science were in mathematics, astronomy, and physics. Because of this many came to associate science with mathematics alone, and to regard society and the human mind as beyond the domain of science.

For many centuries men were afraid of the past. If it had its victories, it also had its defeats, and history was thought to be full of unbearable analogies. The conservative who looked merely to the past was in disrepute. He lived with the dead and was not willing to bury them. Men respect both life and death, but they dislike the confusion of the two which the conservative too often made in trying to put new wine into the old bottles.

But in recent years science has turned its attention to the past. The authority of tradition has been destroyed only to lead to greater appreciation of the treasure in tradition. The last century broke many an idol, but no century has been so eager to understand the idols it was breaking. The modern scholar knows more about Homer than Plato did, more about antiquity than Dante, and more about the Bible than those who first translated it.

The past has been found to be not only a good companion but a profitable guide. As the historian Ranke suggested, really to understand things as they are today one must know how they came to be what they are. A walk with a hundred years emancipates the mind by giving vista and perspective.

One familiar with the past can hold the present somewhat lightly. He knows that the established social order is not fixed, but flexible and changing all the time. It is profitable at times for one to regard certain modern schemes of improvement with a certain levity. But to realise that our way of living today is not the only possible one is great step toward intellectual freedom and mastery.

History is now used with a certain ease and without too much reverence. The past is not featureless, but very near and human. Progress is not dream or drift, but an affair of knowledge and control. To walk with a hundred years is one of the gifts of scholars to the present generation. — Minneapolis Journal.

On Making Sure

There is nothing like making sure where one's health is concerned. Good health is the best guarantee that Life shall be a success. Now it is well-known that digestive disorders are the cause of more cases of ill-health than any other class of ailment. The digestive system is so extensive, so complex and so hard-worked, that its liability to derangement is not astonishing. Happily, however, many digestive ailments can be easily remedied. Happily, too, many digestions need never go wrong. You can make reasonably sure that your digestion will not fail you, even under trying conditions, if you get into the excellent way of taking Beecham's Pills. This "Wonderful Medicine"—as it has been called—does really work wonders with the digestive system. Beecham's Pills impart tone to the stomach, regulate the action of the liver and kidneys and gently stimulate the bowels into healthy activity. Get into the habit of making sure. Have recourse to Beecham's Pills at the first sign of digestive trouble. Make sure of your health by taking

Denial In Berlin That Scandal Caused The Young Prince Take His Life

Doorn, July 19.—The news of Prince Joachim's suicide, which was received at Doorn Castle late Saturday night, came as a terrific blow to the ex-Kaiser, as during the recent visit of his youngest son the latter had seemed cheerful and normal. Owing to the serious condition of the ex-Kaiserin, who is suffering from a severe attack of her chronic malady, heart disease, she has not yet been informed of the tragedy. She is said to be getting weaker hourly.

The ex-Kaiser is naturally very depressed. He was, however, seen walking in the grounds this morning with Count von Moltke. Telegrams and letters of sympathy have been arriving all day from all parts, and the local authorities made visits of condolence. The ex-Crown Prince is expected to arrive this evening. The Duke and Duchess of Brunswick, who happened to be staying at Doorn, have prolonged their visit.

Prince Joachim, who during his visits here was popular, never showed signs of depression in public. He often walked through Doorn talking to the village children, with the ex-Crown Prince, who was here at the same time a couple of weeks ago, took long walks, automobile and bicycle rides. The brothers appeared to enjoy each other's company and to be in good spirits. It was however, noticed by some that Joachim when alone would start suddenly to run and then check himself.

Wieringen, Holland, July 19.—The tidings of the sudden death of Prince Joachim came as a great blow to his brother, the former German Crown Prince, who only this morning learned the news from Adjutant von Mulheim.

The relations between Joachim and Frederick William were always of the most friendly nature, the former being the favorite of the family.

The ex-Crown Prince conferred this morning with Burgomaster Perehoom and will probably go to Doorn, the refuge of the former Emperor this afternoon.

Berlin, July 18.—Prince Joachim's suicide caused a great sensation here, and there are most diverging versions of how it occurred and what the reasons for it were. The Hohenzollern family's version of the latter is that the Prince was suffering from nervous collapse caused by the difficulties of a financial settlement with the Prussian State. It is said he had very pessimistic views regarding his future, believing even that he would be driven from his residence, Liegnitz Villa, situated on the outskirts of Sans Souci Park, at Potsdam.

Failure of repeated attempts to accelerate a final financial settlement increased Joachim's nervousness, which the Hohenzollern family suggests was caused originally by a wound he received during the war. This, however, does not agree with the view of Joachim's personal friends, who say he was in perfect physical condition and devoted to all kinds of sport and hunting, and all the greater was their surprise, therefore, on hearing the news of his suicide.

Joachim had the tall slender figure of his eldest brother, the ex-Crown Prince, but his features had a somewhat brutal expression, which made it easy to believe rumors that he would occasionally horsewhip his wife, Marie Princess of Anhalt, whom he married in the second year of the war, and who is the mother of his only child, a 4-year-old boy, who lived with his father at Liegnitz Villa. The mother left the Prince's house more than a year ago on account of his cruelty.

Soon after the Prince was found with a wound in his chest Saturday morning Prince Eitel Friedrich, who since the Kaiser and Crown Prince fled to Holland has been regarded as head of the Hohenzollern family, was called to his bedside and ordered the Prince's removal to a hospital next door to his villa. Eitel never left the bedroom. At noon Joachim regained consciousness and both brothers were observed to have a long and seemingly very grave conversation. Eitel does not deny this, but states that Joachim did not tell him the reasons for his act. The bullet of Joachim's revolver had entered the chest and grazed both the heart and lungs. There never was any chance of saving his life and he died at 1 o'clock Sunday.

The Hohenzollerns and their friends tried their utmost to keep the manner of the Prince's death concealed, but the authorities refused to comply with their wishes.

SPANISH IRONMASTER SHOT

Barcelona, Spain, July 21.—Syndicalists this afternoon shot an ironmaster, Andrew Figuerola, while he was exhorting his workers to refuse to pay subscriptions which the Syndicalists demanded.

Figuerola was taken to a dispensary where he was found to be dead. Two of the alleged assassins were arrested, but another escaped.

On The Roof of the World

The breeze on the roof of the World affects the fur of the Tibetan Fox. The result is long heavy lustrous Fur. The locality here in some places more than 15,000 feet above the level of the sea, produces fox coats of long dense downy fur and over-hair of exquisite fineness and beauty, and in instances of great value. Only the prime skins are selected for you and no skin sent out less than 45 inches in length pelt and tail. You can have one of these Tibetan Fox skins by sending a Chinese Post Office Money order for $25 to Mr. Elly Widler, Ta Tsing-lu, Szechwan Province, and he will immediately mail you one of these specially selected Tibetan Fox Skins.

Big European War Feared In America

Doubt Anglo-French Armies Can Reach Poland In Time To Save Warsaw

Washington, July 22.—Without official information regarding the decision of the Allied Powers to furnish military aid to Poland in her struggle with the Bolsheviki government officials refrained to day from formal expression of opinion but unofficially professed to see in the new situation most of the elements of a European war on a broad scale.

Army officers and officials of the State Department generally were frankly pessimistic as to the ability of France and Great Britain to place armies in Poland in time to check the Russian advance before Warsaw falls and many of them were skeptical of the power of either France or Great Britain to drive their war-weary populations into the struggle without a serious unbalancing of domestic affairs.

Although with the specially conferred war powers there was no disposition in offical circles to assume that he would involve the United States in a war between the Bolcheviki and the Allies, unless action might be justified by some overt act against the army of occupation on the Rhine.

Reports to the State Department indicate increasing consciousness between the conservative and pro-radical groups in Germany and it was generally believed that unless the radical element gained the ascendancy the chances of the United States becoming involved in the new situation were slight, although a suggestion of American co-operation from France and Great Britain was regarded as probable.

For the present, it was indicated at the State Department, the part of the United States will be that of an interested observer. Steps already have been taken to remove from the war area such Americans as may wish to leave.

Polish representatives who conferred with officials of the State Department were elated by the news that Great Britain and France had promised support. They expressed the opinion that the mere announcement would go far toward strengthening the morale of their Government and army and that it might even be possible with sufficient ammunition, artillery and other supplies to hold the Russians in check.

Their optimism, however, was not shared by some of the experts who have been watching the operations of the two forces but it was admitted hope of an adjustment yet remained in the suggestion of an armistice made to Poland by British Government officials.

"How I Keep Married and Happy"—Geraldine Farrar

"Absolute, Even Brutal Truth in Everything Little and Great the One Sure Method of Maintaining Love's Fires Undimmed,"

Says the Distinguished Prima Donna

A Charming New Picture of the Grand Opera Prima Donna, Geraldine Farrar, Who Says, "Of Course No Day That Starts With a Wife in Hideous Curls Papers and So On at the Breakfast Table Can Be Happy. Such Disharmonies Must Have Their Effect Upon a Husband Sooner or Later. I Know Perfectly Well That My Husband Would Be Brutally Frank at Once to Me About My Appearance If I Did Such a Thing." And Here Is the Same Picture of Miss Farrar in the Coiffure That She Warns Other Women Against—Just as an Object Lesson of What to Avoid.

RECENTLY Fannie Hurst, the brilliant novelist, caused much interested comment by revealing that while all her friends thought her single she had really been married for four years; and that she and her husband had found perfect happiness by living largely apart—or, as she put it, "having an average of two breakfasts a week together." By this method, said Miss Hurst, both she and her husband were to-day as happy with each other as the day they were married.

The exact opposite of this arrangement, those familiar with the artistic life of New York know, is that of the grand opera prima donna, Geraldine Farrar, and her husband, Lou Tellegen, the distinguished actor. These two spend every moment together that they can.

How could such opposite ways of practising matrimony have the same result?

Miss Farrar here very frankly explains her method, revealing for the first time among other intimate and interesting things, how she was induced to forsake the paths of single blessedness by Mr. Tellegen.

By Geraldine Farrar

(In an Interview.)

SIXTY per cent of the reason we are as happy together as we were on our wedding day more than four years ago is that my husband and I are brutally honest with each other.

We practice a candor that to persons of another kind of thought must, and I know does, seem horrible.

Yet it is the only way to secure happiness The real Rock of Ages is truth—fact Matrimony has been likened to a sea It is And the barks of love that have been wrecked upon it because the two skippers fooled each other with compass readings, false observation upon the weather and each other's seamanship are wretchedly innumerable. Stick to facts and you are safe in any weather. Brutal honesty is the true science of navigation on the matrimonial sea.

To illustrate: I come home after singing my role in an opera. I know in my heart I haven't sung it well. If my husband has heard me that particular evening do you suppose I am greeted with something like this: "Darling, you're nervous, and you're underestimating yourself. You were wonderful!"

I do not. I find at my metaphorical hearth a charming gentleman who, after taking off my wraps, draws out a chair for me and says: "My dear, you sang very badly indeed to-night."

Am I angry? Not at all. I encourage him to go on. The atmosphere is cleared of any doubt or possibility of misunderstanding. He is not chiding me; he is neither crude nor cruel. Mind is meeting mind; he is helping me and I am grateful.

In the same way I criticize his performances. I watch his acting with the intentional eye of the analyst. And after the theatre I tell him exactly what I think. Neither of us uses any conversational camouflage. We call what we think a mistake—a mistake. The result is that we believe in each other. We know that each has the courage to tell the other the truth.

The same method holds true of all our lives. Of course, no day that starts with a wife in hideous curl papers and so on at the breakfast table can be happy. Such disharmonies must have their effect upon a husband sooner or later. I know perfectly well that my husband would be brutally frank at once to me about my appearance if I did such a thing. And knowing this I quite naturally never appear that way. It is said of the Empress Josephine that she never allowed Napoleon to see her in an ungraceful attitude. She had part of the idea at any rate. It doesn't really matter that she couldn't keep Napoleon after all; she might have lost him much sooner.

Only a house builded on honesty in small things as well as great can stand.

My husband won me by the same direct methods. We met at a luncheon. We met again at Los Angeles. Shortly after that I gave a large party. It was a beautiful moonlight night. Mr. Tellegen was the first of my guests to arrive. Fortunately I had dressed very early and could receive him. During the evening I was aware that he was constantly near me. It was an all-night party. My guests stayed to breakfast. Then they all went home except Mr. Tellegen. I was very tired and sleepy, but I hadn't the courage to say to him: "Please go home."

We sat out on the veranda until eleven o'clock. Then he said: "Naturally you're tired. I will go home and allow you a tub and some sleep. I will be back at three to take you for a drive."

He came at three and made me take that drive. It is an enchanting country, but he drove me straight into the oil fields! The ugly, smelly oil fields! "Why on earth did you bring me here?" I asked.

"Because it's the only place where we can be alone," he said. "When you're home there are a lot of people always about and you're always receiving and opening letters. By the way, you receive altogether too many letters."

"Yes," I said, "but why did you bring me here?"

"I brought you here to tell you that I intend to marry you," he answered.

Unique though it was there was no mistaking the honesty of that proposal.

And after a while, when we came back to New York, we were married.

I never see my husband at breakfast at all.

I rise at eight. I breakfast alone and at nine I am at my piano. The time that is left that morning I give to my correspondence or household affairs. Mr. Tellegen and I meet at luncheon. In the afternoon we do whatever he wishes to. Do not think that the attitude of a submissive, self-effacing wife. It is justice. I have always retired early. When my husband has finished his work at the theatre I am soundly asleep. Yet from one to five in the morning are his hours. I don't like clubs; I dislike their atmosphere. I should be very sorry if my husband frequented either the Lambs or the Friars. So I have made our home his club. He brings men to his den or the dining room, and they sit there and talk of plays and casts and performances until five o'clock. I should like to join them, but I can't—I must sleep.

Thus we lead our lives together without interference; apart without estrangement. We are sufficiently together for tender companionship; sufficiently apart to prevent boredom and to bring each other interests and refreshment from other worlds. Each brings to the union something the other lacked. My husband is an artist. I am aware of his lack of business instinct that expresses itself in not taking care of what is his own. I, on the other hand, being of New England, try to take good care of my own and his. He is amazed at my practicality. The first year of our marriage I spent an entire Summer collecting what people owed him.

I was astounded when I looked over his accounts. "Loaned So-and-So $1,800." "Loaned Black $1,000." "Loaned White $500." Eighteen thousand dollars were outstanding, which he had made no effort to collect and probably would never get unless I got it for him. I did.

I went to the office of a man who owed him several thousand dollars.

"I've come to collect what you owe my husband," I told him. He seemed startled, but was most courteous.

"I'm sorry the matter has been overlooked," he said. "I'll send you a check to-morrow."

"No," I answered, "I must have it now."

He drew out his checkbook.

"Cash, please," I said. He sent the check to the bank, had it cashed and handed me the bank-notes. I got that whole eighteen thousand back!

My husband was amazed!

Whatever the outside world has of flattery for me, there is no cordon of sentimental deceit at home. The ego cannot grow fat in such an air.

Friends who see that we are really happy come to me to ask the secret. That is why I am telling it here — for all those to apply as they wish and as their environment directs.

It is very simple—stick to facts. And use common sense.

One of my friends lamented that her husband no longer cared for her. And talked a little later of having her hair washed every eight weeks! My head gets a dousing every Sunday morning—I spend that whole morning in a going over, massage, manicure, pedicure and shampoo.

Another matrimonial fault-finder said her husband would never stay at home. She is a perpetual chatterer. When she goes I lean back exhausted and say: "I won't see Mary for three months. I can't." When she asked my advice I said: "You talk too much to him." "But," she answered, "I want to explain things to John!"

I replied: "Men don't have to be explained to—other things being equal."

Nor do they. Those seven mornings over the egg cups could be managed by a clever woman—and for seven days a week the husband could be made to believe he was breakfasting in Paradise. That is, if the wife would only be honest—with herself as well as with him. And use common sense.

Sixty per cent of happiness in marriage can be secured by honesty — that much at least. The other forty per cent, I should say, is based upon consideration of one for the other.

Everyone can be honest. And even a marriage that is sixty per cent happy isn't a failure by any means. And any one ought to be able to find at least twenty per cent of consideration.

Who will deny that an eighty per cent happy marriage isn't gloriously successful?

It really isn't difficult to make it a full hundred per cent.

Hankow Market

Hankow, August 18.

FINANCE AND MONEY MARKET

Another quiet week with a few bills offering and a small demand for remittance. Taels T.T. on Shanghai. Foreign banks imported and quoted 96.75 to 96.8. The Chinese Market rose to 96.675. Dollars remained steady at 70.05-70.25 during the week. Interest 5 percent. Changsha exchange. Nominal

IMPORTS

The market is quiet and there is little or no inquiry. Prices, especially of blacks have improved slightly. Some sales of Japanese stocks have taken place at cheap prices. Clearances poor.

EXPORTS

There are some inquiries in the market, but the political situation in Europe checks business, besides which we seem to be witnessing another gamble in exchange, from which as usual the exporter has to suffer. Conditions in America are very bad, but it is to be hoped that a change for the better will take place soon, although we hear that large stocks, particularly of wood oil and goatskins will have to be disposed of before much can be expected.

THE REAL COLLEGE SPIRIT

Kansas Man Thinks He Saw It While He Was Visiting Dartmouth

A Kansan who attended the class day exercises at Dartmouth College during the recent commencement week of that school found his greatest surprise in the class spirit of the college.

In the West, commencement week in college life is an incident so far as the old "grads" are concerned. In Dartmouth it is a devotion. The maintenance of the class organisations and the pride of the members in them were a revelation to this Western man who knows a little of college life in the West.

To witness the spectacle of grayhaired veterans of '58 taking part in the class day parade, and a group of youngsters of the class of '64, and another delegation of the class of '69 marching under a blazing sun for love of Dartmouth and Auld Lang Syne, was one both interesting and illuminating.

"We have no such college spirit in the West," the stranger at Dartmouth said to a friend at his side. "With this sort of a spirit in the West we would have less trouble with our legislators in the matter of appropriations for State schools, and less difficulty in obtaining endowment funds for our other colleges."

"But, you must remember," the man from Dartmouth said, "Dartmouth is one hundred and fifty years old."

The Dartmouth man meant to imply that as the colleges of the West attain age and the lists of their graduates increase, the spirit of loyalty will become aroused as it is in the Eastern schools.

But it is not loyalty to the schools that is lacking. Loyalty to his alma mater is of the same sort, in the Western college man that it is in the Eastern college man. The thing that appears to be lacking in the Western schools is the sense of responsibility for the old school on the part of the graduates. Once away from it, they let go all hold upon the school and assume no debt of patriotism for it other than to utter kind words about it.

It would be well worth while on the part of Western schools to cultivate the class organisation and the class spirit. For the alumnus who would don a uniform that would give him the appearance of a cross between a Highlander and a longshoreman and march and cavort in the summer sun with the thermometer hanging about the hundred mark, for love of the class of '04, ought to get inspiration from the some source to don his fighting clothes in the winter time and march to the State capital and shake his fist under the noses of the Cheap John legislators and demand fair treatment for the schools of the State or to walk over to his neighbor and argue out with him the question of sending the neighbor's boy to college, or make a speech before the amalgamated order of coupon clippers and talk them out of a share of their coupon money for the endowment fund for the old school that gave him his "start in life."—Kansas City Times.

MUNICIPAL NOTIFICATION

No. 2715.

SHANGHAI MUNICIPAL COUNCIL 6 PER CENT. STERLING LOAN, 1920.

Amount £750,000

Price of Issue £100 per cent.

UNDER the authority of Resolution VII passed at the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers on April 7, 1920, the Council hereby invites applications for Bearer Debentures (with coupons attached) in the 6 percent. Sterling Loan of 1920, which is issued on the following terms:—

(1) Debentures to Bearer, with Sterling interest coupons attached, will be issued at £100 percent in denominations of £1,000, £500, £100 and £50.

(2) The Debentures of this issue will bear interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum, payable on June 30 and December 31 in each year by sterling demand draft on London at par, or in silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's Shanghai current demand buying rate on London on date of presentation of the relative coupon. The first payment of interest will be made on December 31, 1920.

(3) Applications, accompanied by payment in full, will be received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, on and after May 1, up to and including June 30, 1920, the Council reserving to itself the right of closing the subscription lists on any day previous to June 30, 1920, by Notification in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai.

(4) Payment on application will be accepted in Silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's current selling T.T. rate on London and will bear interest from date of payment, or in Sterling by T.T. or Demand Draft on London. Interest on payments made in Sterling will only accrue from the date on which the relative remittances are received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, London.

The cost of all telegrams involved through payment by Sterling T.T. shall be paid by the applicant.

Payment will be acknowledged by Banker's Receipt pending issue of the Debentures.

In the event of any applicant not being allotted the full amount applied for, the amount over-applied for will be repaid in full, plus interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum from the date payment was received in Shanghai or London to the due date of repayment in Shanghai, as notified to the applicant by special notice from the Council.

(5) The Loan will be redeemed at par on June 30, 1950, but may be redeemed by the Council in whole or in part on June 30, 1930, and/or on any subsequent date or dates on which the half-yearly interest is payable, subject to the Council giving six calendar months' notice in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai. In the event of any partial redemption of the loan the numbers of the Debentures to be redeemed will be decided by drawing. The numbers of such drawn Debentures will be notified in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai not less than three months prior to the date of repayment.

Application forms can be obtained on and after May 1, from the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, or from the Treasurer and Comptroller, Finance Department, 24a Kiangse Road, to whom all enquiries should be addressed.

By order,
N. Q. LIDDELL,
Secretary.

HAINES: At Victoria Nursing Home, August 24th, 1920; George B. Haines of the Health Department, Shanghai Municipal Council, in his 35th year. The funeral will take place at Bubbling Well Cemetery on Thursday, August 26th, at 5 p.m. All friends are invited to attend.

The League Now---Or May Be Never!

IN his letter to us yesterday, casting his vote for Senator Harding for President, Mr. Fenneman merely expressed thoughts that, beyond question, are finding lodgment in many American minds. He was disappointed by the nomination of Harding, but gave him his vote because "he believes in keeping out of European politics."

Washington, he adds, was his ideal statesman and his admonition to "beware of entangling alliances" was, Mr. Fenneman says, "never more needed than it is today."

The difference between Harding, the Republican, and Cox, the Democrat, on the paramount issue, the League of Nations, is neither wide nor deep but it is of utmost importance. Stated briefly, it is about this: Harding and his party are against the present League of Nations. But they are in principle not against a league or association of nations. They would like to make a separate peace with Germany and then at some felicitous time, if such a time should ever come, assist in establishing a court, or league or association of nations. They would on entering such court, league or association, make certain reservations, setting forth the special position of the United States.

On the other hand, Cox and his party feel that the present League of Nations, as already established, offers the best, not merely that, but the only promise of real and lasting peace that is available, and that as such it ought to be supported and strengthened by the United States. They believe that this league, into which 28 sovereign peoples all over the world already have cast their fates and fortunes, is founded on right principles, the same principles that would have to guide any future league of nations, and that any attempt to break this one up in order merely to form another one, under different auspices, would be fraught with utmost danger to the world, and in any event, would delay the coming of universal peace and commercial and financial stability for years.

They believe in joining the present league and in the setting forth of mild reservations, these being merely to the effect that "America joins this league with the understanding that it is a group of nations bound together to preserve the peace of the world, and will remain in it only so long as that remains its guiding principle:" this, and perhaps one other, to the effect that our representative in the league cannot commit us to war, because under the American Constitution that power or privilege, is reserved exclusively to Congress.

These are simple, honest and dignified matters to which Europe can offer no possible objection.

To the cry that, by going into the League, we yield some part of our sovereignty, we do not agree. We bind ourselves to fulfill certain obligations, and therefore voluntarily and for the general good yield some privileges—such for instance as the power instantly to declare war—but the other nations yield the same privileges in the same degree.

Great Britain is a proud and powerful empire. It yields the same privileges in the same degree, as we do and as Cuba, Honduras and other nations do. But does anybody suppose Great Britain is yielding any of her sovereignty?

As to the "foreign entanglements" we heard enough of that argument before the United States went into the Great War. That was disposed of at that time and it was disposed of in the same way that Washington would have disposed of it.

If we are to have foreign trade we are to have foreign entanglements. To carry the argument out to its logical conclusion we should have to build a wall around ourselves and cut off our foreign trade, which of course, is unthinkable. And going still further, if we did that, we should have to face both foreign and domestic entanglements, for our people would object at least as much as the rest of the world. The world needs our goods and we need the world's goods.

The world has grown to be a small place. Electricity and steam have reduced it to about one-tenth its former size. We are not two months away from England; we are only four day's away by boat and by wire one second. Everything we do these days has a foreign entanglements question mark attached to it. We have been tangled up in foreign affairs ever since Washington warned us to beware of them. And only good has come to us and to the world as a result.

And if we stay out of the League of Nations, everything that the League does will intrigue us and entangle us. As it is, not being in the League, we are reduced to this ridiculous position: Everytime the League meets at Hythe, San Remo, Spa, or Versailles, we order out our most available Ambassador or Minister, who in turn calls in a couple of secret service men. Then they engage first class quarters at a first class hotel near where the League of Nations is in session and set about the task of trying to find out what the league is doing to us and to the rest of the known world. How different it would be if we were in the League giving it of our best, instead of sitting over in a hotel room wondering what was going on?

It must become clear to any reader, if he will but study the question, that we invite foreign entanglements by staying out of the league and avoid them by entering it.

Meadow Larks

Sweet, sweet! Oh happy that I am!
(Listen to the meadow larks, across the fields that sing!)
Sweet, sweet, sweet! O subtle breath of balm,
O winds that blow, O buds that grow, O rapture of the spring!

Sweet, sweet, sweet! O skies serene and blue.
That shut the velvet pasture in, that fold the mountain's crest!
Sweet, sweet, sweet! What of the clouds ye know?
The vessels ride a golden tide upon a sea at rest.

Sweet, sweet, sweet; who prates of care and pain?
Who says that life is sorrowful? O life so glad, so fleet!
Ah, he who lives the noblest life finds life the noblest gain
The tears of pean a tender rain to make its waters sweet.

Sweet, sweet, sweet! O happy world that is!
Dear heart, I hear across the fields my mateling pipe and call.
Sweet, sweet, sweet! O world so full of bliss—
For life is love, the world is love, and love is over all!

POETRY AND THE SENSES

Witter Bynner, whose delightful verses on "Russians" appeared in yesterday morning's CHINA PRESS, is said to have worked off a pretty good one at the Poetry Society banquet recently. Some one asked him if Burns and Noyes could not be likened to each other. Bynner replied:

"Well, you can feel Burns, while you can only hear Noyes."

A SHORTAGE IN CUBA

No sir, I don't mean what you think. It is a sugar shortage, and John Floyd writes there will be a greater shortage next year as the refiners say there is not more than 300,000 tons of raw sugar available from Cuba.

No word has been received, however, that the raw material that combats the eighteenth amendment is running short.

POLITICS

We move, the wheel must always move,
Nor always on the plain,
And if we move to such a goal
As Wisdom hopes to gain,
Then you that drive, and know your craft,
Will firmly hold the rein,
Nor lend an ear to random cries,
Or you may drive in vain,
For some cry 'Quick' and some cry 'Slow'
But, while the hills remain,
Up hill 'Too-slow' will need the whip,
Down hill 'Too-quick,' the chain.

RETURN OF C. B. FRY

Cricketers all over the world will rejoice at the return of C. B. Fry to the field in which he has had so many triumphs. At one time "Every day was a Fry-Day" when C. B. played for Sussex. He is back in the Hampshire team again, and before long we may expect to hear another of the Barrett-Fry wicket stands.

C. B. Fry has not been seen in first class cricket since the beginning of the war, and in his appearance against Surrey last month he was able to do little except chase Hobbs' hits. But he went in first and was undefeated with 16 to his credit when rain put an end to the game.

MY BEASTLY EYEGLASS

I once got nearly married to a girl in U.S.A.
Whose dad had made his millions out of pork,
She really got quite fond of me and one fine summer's day
Suggested that we take a beastly walk.
She asked me did I love her, I said I didn't know,
That later on perhaps I'd have a try,
That really at the moment I'd as much as I could do
To keep my beastly eyeglass in my eye.

SOME QUESTIONS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—Can we avoid "Entangling Alliances" by electing Mr. Harding President? Could we have avoided Germany if the Germans had won the war? Is it not also a fact that unless we continue as a nation to remain interested in Far Eastern affairs there may be a question as to when the Japanese will curtail their militaristic and aggressive policy in Siberia and China?

Would we not be compelled to get "Entangled," even against our will, should the militaristic and aggressive spirit be allowed to remain rampant?

Should the same spirit again become rampant in Europe or any other parts of this Earth could we remain isolated?

Commercial and financial relations in this world are of necessity international.

Thus also of necessity are we compelled to remain interested in other peoples because our commerce and finance are interwoven with theirs.

I could go on with many more reasons why Mr. Harding could not carry out his promise and it is doubtful if "The Father of our country" could do so under the present conditions. Respectfully.

Niels Andersen.

SAMUEL SPEAKS HIS MIND

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—With reference to my vote for the next President, My Vote Goes To Gov. Cox, Democrat. Not because I am a Democrat, or that I am so thoroughly in favor of the Democratic platform, but for the principal reason that Mr. Cox was chosen directly by the people and when elected will represent the people and not the Party Boss. He won his nomination in a fair open fight. He is not a machine man but represents sound American principles, and I am sure if he is elected he will follow, or better, fulfil, the work started by Woodrow Wilson, "The League of Nations," which sooner or later will be adopted as the surest and safest plan to protect the world from future atrocities.

Our dear countrymen who sacrificed their lives on the battlefields of France in order to make a safer and better world to live in shall not have died in vain.

Republican monuments and fancy speeches cannot and will not replace to those who are now in mourning their loved ones, but Woodrow Wilson's fourteen points and the League of Nations can save posterity from similar sacrifices in the future.

For the widows and orphans and disabled soldiers, has the Republican Party while in power made any provision? Have they not blocked the compensation bill? Are we to elect a man responsible only to a clique? Are we to raise our youths still to be slaughtered?

We want peace and we must have it in our country and all through the world and to accomplish this we must not remain isolated. I therefore vote FOR THE RIGHT MAN, AT THE RIGHT TIME; IN THE RIGHT PLACE; GOV. JAMES M. COX!

SAMUEL.

A GOOD START IN A GOOD CAUSE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—The Chinese Y.M.C.A., through its Boys' Department, is just beginning a movement which is sure to be far-reaching in its influence upon the people of Shanghai—that of connecting up the beggars of this city with the better interests and seeking to educate their children. The program which they are undertaking is an enormous one, but they expect to start modestly and not bite off more than they can chow.

Eight health classes have been held during the summer near Dixwell Road with an enrollment of 125 children. These classes have been exclusively for the very poor and beggar children. September First will see a change in curriculum, and instead of teaching hygiene only, the teachers will give courses in reading and writing Chinese characters, arithmetic, play and games. One Y.M.C.A. Secretary and one employed teacher are in charge, while twenty Chinese have volunteered their services and are teaching without remuneration.

Classes are from four to six for the younger children and from seven to nine for those who work—their chief occupation being gathering up old rags which they sell for five cash a catty. The Y.M.C.A. has secured an agent who will buy rags, bottles, tin and paper, from these children and pay them the best market prices. This will be a means of connection and will enable the Association to get more of these miserably poor children under its influence.

They hope to have a dispensary operated by one of the local Chinese hospitals open one or two evenings each week in the neighborhood where these children of beggars may go for treatment. A woman is to be employed to teach the girls to make clothing from old clothes collected in the neighborhood, and a man to teach the boys shoe-making, bamboo furniture-making, etc.

A bath-room will be provided. Every child must be clean before entering the class room. This plan has been followed in the "Little Brothers" Society, an organisation which meets at the Y.M.C.A. building. When this club was started, it was necessary for them to furnish towels and soap for many of the boys, but now they are clean when they come into the building.

Providing better living conditions for these children who live out of garbage cans, and wear filthy rags, if any clothing at all, is one of our social obligations. Such organisations as the one Miss Wong Tsien-yi has organised, the Y.M.C.A. and others, can lend a tremendous influence in that direction. Yours, etc.,

C. D. GIAUQUE.

TWO WE OVERLOOKED

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—On reading over the published list of the names of departing students and ambitious young men about to leave per s.s. Nanking and s.s. Nile for the pursuit of higher studies in the United States, I find there are two cases of omission which I happen to know personally, and I should be much obliged if you would kindly rectify these omissions, namely.

Mr. B. E. Lee, Secretary to Dr. Fong F. Sec. of the English Editorial Department of the Commercial Press, Ltd., leaves on the Nanking to join the Commercial School of the University of Chicago.

Mr. Tong Cheng-tao, a member of the teaching staff of the Y.M.C.A. Middle School, Shanghai, leaves on the Nanking to join the Commercial School of the University of Chicago.

Thanking you for the courtesy. Yours Respectfully,

FRANCIS ZIA.

MUNICIPAL WASTE OF MONEY

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: Did you see that item in the papers yesterday describing the efficient methods of our Police Dept., in enforcing traffic regulations? Did you also deduce that it is now a misdemeanor not to read the Municipal Gazette?

It seems that on July 1, the "Private Motor Bicycle License" regulations were changed by the addition of the phrase "and that an additional number plate be affixed in a conspicuous position at the rear of the vehicle." This addition is set forth on the receipt issued by the tax collector and constitutes the 9th line of the 28 lines of conditions printed in type 1/16 inch high and occupies about 3/16 of a square inch of space on a receipt that is 7" x 13" in size, or about 1/500 of the face of the receipt. The same was doubtless printed in the Municipal Gazette.

Strange to say, it seems that very few if any motorcycle owners who had taken out licenses previous to July 1, noted the change in regulations, and so became unconscious violators of the law. Of course this would not do, so orders seem to have been issued from Police headquarters to round up the offenders, with the result as chronicled in the N.C.D.N. with words of praise for the efficiency and determination of the S.M.P.

The writer believes in our police—our police regulations in general, and the one under discussion in particular. But the situation would be amusing, nevertheless, if it were not serious and it would be serious if it were not downright funny when one comes to analyse it.

To get those two tags put on the offending motorcycles, the course followed by our S.M.P. with estimated cost of each process was approximately as follows:

	Tls.
1. General, orders issued to apprehend offenders—cost say	5.00
2. Reports by police of offenders cost say	.50
3. Charge made out by chief of Police signed and sealed and sent to American court cost say	10.00
4. Summons of U.S. Marshall, for offenders to appear at court	15.00
5. Cost of court in hearing the case	50.00
6. Cost to S.M.C. of time of two constables to attend court	5.00
7. Offenders time, taken from business, to appear in answer to charge	50.00
8. Valuable space occupied in N.C.D.N. reporting the incident	20.00
9. Time given by all readers of N.C.D.N. in reading the account (Impossible to estimate)	——
10. Offense to dignity of offender (impossible to estimate)	——
Approximate Total Costs	155.50

And the Judge's decision was "Obviously no wilful violation of the Ordinance—case dismissed."

Now why was it necessary to go to all this expense? Why was not the tax collector instructed to notify license holders when collecting the fee for the July quarter? That method would have been 100 percent efficient and would have cost nothing. Or why was not a red line notice sent license holders at a cost of 1 cent each for postage? If this is a sample of "efficient Government" in this settlement then it is time for our Council to employ some "efficiency engineers" to look over our cost sheets. They might find out why our taxes are so high, and ways to reduce them wholesale.

As stated above, the incident would be amusing if it were not serious.

Taxpayer.

Law Code Of Hammurabi

Severe Penalties Imposed for Jiltings and Surgeon's Mistakes

Recent deciphering of a clay tablet which may add a thousand years to the span of recorded history—for it contains a code of laws said to antedate that of Hammurabi by a millennium—is another reminder that archaeologists are finding stranger true stories than fiction can reveal, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society.

"The pick and spade of the explorer have resulted in astounding revelations," writes Albert T. Clay, who has deciphered some of the most famous of the documents. Above all else, one of the greatest surprises is that the earliest people, instead of being barbarous or uncultured, were civilised and possessed a culture of a high order. Several ancient libraries and immense archives have been found. Mr. Clay says:

"Years ago the literary library of Ashuhbanipal (668-626 B. C.) was discovered at Nineveh. In more recent years temple and school libraries have been found at Nippur, Sippar, Larsa, Babylon and Erech. The libraries of the first three sites belong chiefly to the third millennium B. C. those of the last two belong to later periods. But especially large archives of these documents, numbering several hundred thousand and belonging to the third and fourth millenniums B. C. have been found at Tello, Nippur, Drehem, Jokha and recently at Ur.

"The code of Hammurabi, written about 2,000 B. C. upon a large and somewhat irregular stele, is perhaps the most important monument of antiquity. It is the product of a century. It is the product of a civilisation of a high order. In codifying his laws Hammurabi arranged them in a definite and logical order, based upon accepted judicial decisions. In no better way is it possible to become acquainted with the everyday life of the ancient Babylonian than by a careful study of the Hammurabi code. The code recognises three grades of society—the aristocrat, or gentleman; the poor man, or pleb, and the slave. Among the ranks of the first mentioned were the professional men, the officers and the tradesmen. The second class included the freedman who had been a slave.

"It has been the custom with most peoples in a large part of the ancient as well as the modern Orient to base a betrothal upon an agreement of the man or his parents to pay a sum of money to the girl's father. In Babylonia the 'bride money,' together with the gift of the father and other gifts, formed the marriage portion which was given to the bride. In case the girl's father rejected the suitor after the contract had been made, he was required to return double the amount of the bride price. The betrothals took place usually when the parties were young, and as a rule the engagements were made by the parents. If the father died before all the sons were married, when the estate was divided the sums needed for those not having wives were deducted before the distribution was made.

"A marriage contract was necessary to make a marriage legal. In some of them peculiar conditions were made, such as the bride being required to wait upon the mother-in-law, or ever upon another wife. If it was stipulated that the man should not take a second wife, the woman could secure a divorce in case her husband broke the agreement. The code of Hammurabi fixed the charges of physicians and surgeons. If a physician cured a broken limb or healed a diseased bowel, his fee from the gentry was fixed at five shekels; from the commoner, three, and from the slave two. The surgeon for an operation upon the upper class received ten shekels; the lower, five, and the slave two. In order to discourage the surgeon from making rash operations severe penalties were fixed in case of unsuccessful ones. If the patient died the surgeon's hands were cut off. In the case of a slave he had to replace him with one of equal value. If the slave's eye was lost he had to pay half the value of the slave."

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper

Is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

The Wail Of A Luckless Man

BY S. E. Kiser

Some people claim it isn't luck, and have a lot to say
Concernin' wisdom, work and pluck, and pluggin' day by day;
I don't deny that there's a lot of sense in bein' wise,
But luck's the little thing you've got to find before you rise.

For instance, there was Arthur Small—taught school here years ago—
His teachin' wouldn't do at all; we had to tell him so.
Directors thought he was a fool; he didn't seem to care,
And, havin' nothin' else to do, he up and wrote a book or two;
Most mushy stuff I ever read, but lately I have heard it said
That Arthur was a millionaire.

And there was Tim Burke's oldest son, a lazy sort o' lad;
At harvest time he never done a thing to help his dad;
The old man drove him off at last—just told him plain and flat
That all the monkeyin' was past. What happened after that?
He's got an income, so I hear, of half a million every year;
Doped out some kind of medicine he guarantees to keep 'em thin
When women find they're gettin' fat.

Take them two fellers—was it pluck that made 'em rich and gay?
Suppose that both of them had stuck, and not been drove away!
Here I've been pluggin' on for years, and I ain't got no doubt
That it's because no one appears to want to kick me out.

THE ICE

An amusing incident occurred at a living bridge tournament.

A well-known woman who was impersonating the queen of hearts was accosted by a fellow-performer whose accent suggested that her cradle had stood within sound of Bow Bells.

"I'm looking for the ices," she said. "Have you seen them?"

"Ices?" said the queen of hearts. "Are there any ices? How delightful! I'm horribly thirsty!"

"I don't mean those kind of ices," was the rather hurt rejoinder. "I'm looking for the ice of spides!"—London Tit-Bits.

The Soul Of The Spinster

BY JANUARY MORTIMER

Only a very few women are celebate by nature and by choice.

There is a small class of abnormal love-proof women who may be described as natural old maids. These are known in France as frigides. They are unemotional and cold, but their capacity in certain occupations is frequently conspicuous, and they find compensation, and sometime contentment or even happiness, in work.

Cupid's arrows cannot penetrate the hearts of these unimpressionable women. But unfortunately for themselves and the men who admire them, they may marry after thirty for financial or other material reasons.

Many "cold" women shrink from the reproach of being classed as one of the unloved and unsought. The spinster of the stage and the novel is almost invariably a bitter-tongued shrew or an exaggerated type of prude and scandal-monger.

Now, as everyone knows, there are almost angelic maiden aunts and splendid heroines among unmarried women. Many a youth and grown man has found his most loyal and sympathetic friend among the sweet-natured spinsters. There are single women in all the civilised societies who are the embodiment of all the feminine virtues and maternal tendernesses.

• • •

The acidulated spinster is unfortunately accepted as the chief representative type. And there is no question that she is quite capable of making her influence felt among her relatives and nea associates.

In the well-to-do classes she enjoys unbounded leisure and her energy is often baneful in its results. She reduces "interfering" to a fine art.

In her "twenties" she may have been a handsome, attractive woman, but in the flush of her beauty she estimated her value too highly. After a series of "affairs" and the rejection of several suitors, she takes her place among the unmated, not with gentle resignation but with bitterness and a sense of injustice.

As an elder sister she is often a thorn in the flesh to her juniors and a terror to her nieces. Her principal activity is the frustration of love matches among her younger relatives and friends.

Forbes Winslow, the mental physician, said that the more pronounced type of disappointed spinster sometimes degenerates into "a she fiend" and becomes a pest in her immediate circle of friends. These unfortunate and greatly to-be-pited women are often domestic tyrants, dreaded and disliked among the young and their subordinates.

What a contrast from the benign, unselfish, tactful maiden aunts who diffuse happiness and are loved by nephews and nieces an second mothers! They too have had their disappointments and know the secret trial of heart-loneliness. But the gentle spinster is one who has discovered that the love-impulse has more ways than one of expression. And of this kind are some of the finest women in our sadly ill-organised society.

Reserve Law And Wilson

(From The New York Evening Post)

What the chairman's speech at San Francisco has to say of the federal reserve law as an achievement of the Wilson administration is true enough; but in our judgment he says too little. Ordinarily, brevity is a merit in convention speeches or platform planks, as praiseworthy as it is unusual; but in the case of the federal reserve Mr. Cummings falls much short of his legitimate opportunity. That the introduction of the new banking system was followed by decrease in failures of private banks to the vanishing point was worth recalling. But the fact that the establishment of the system in November, 1914 marked the end of our own market's participation in the "war panic," and thenceforward provided a sure basis of strength and confidential results.

We do not know of any American business man who does not willingly concede the immense importance of the federal reserve law in making possible for the United States that instantaneous recovery from the greatest world panic in history. What would have been our own chapter of economic history if he had been left, in the closing months of 1914, to the old and dangerous make-shifts of our former national bank system, only the story of 1907 and 1893 can tell.

We presume these facts will be set forth in the platform. There will be good reason for expecting concise and impressive statement of them if, as seems to be foreshadowed, the chairman of the platform committee is to be Senator Glass, who was himself the most important author of the federal reserve law.

The Passing

Ah, little first love with the wistful eyes,
Why do you come as the twilight dies?
Why tonight when the moon hangs low
Do I feel your lips as once long ago?
Why should a memory haunt me so?
Is it a whisper that sighs on the breeze?
Is it the glint of the moon through the trees?
Yet why tonight must the days that are gone
Come back like the shadow before the dawn—
Tonight, when my joy is full?
Oh, little first love with the wind-tossed hair,
What do you see? You are standing there
Like one who gaves far out to sea.
Is it the future that's waiting for me?
Or only the dream of what could not be?
Is it the sight of the moon as it dies
That fades the light from your wistful eyes?
Do you turn so sadly because you know
That another must nearer and dearer grow?
Oh, little first love, good-bye.

Life Pills

The reason for the name "Life Pills" is understood by regular users of Dr. Ross' Life Pills. They have kept their systems clear of poisonous waste matter, and enjoy good appetite, good digestion, and good health. They are full of energy and ambition.

When you feel dull and depressed, do not wait until you are actually ill, but take Dr. Ross' Life Pills at regular intervals and keep yourself in good health and spirits.

For sale at all druggists.
